A NOTE ABOUT THOMAS KISBEE

The British Naval Officer joined the Royal Navy in 1808. He was appointed to Coast Guard in 1827, serving at Great Yarmouth for 15 years, and later deployed overseas from 1841 to 1847. During his service, he designed a lightweight, circular buoy that functioned as a life-saving apparatus at sea. By 1862, it was required that Royal Navy ships be outfitted with 2 "Kisbee Rings" per vessel. In 1855, Thomas Kisbee was awarded the silver medal of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution for his valiant assistance in the rescue of 200 shipwrecked individuals on the Norfolk Coast.
